1870. 112 Henry II of France and Diana of Poitiers witnessing the execution of a Protestant.
“Henry II, though not of a cruel disposition, was induced by anger and wounded pride to join in the persecution of the Protestants through being brought in contact with one of his own domestics, whose resistance provoked his hatred to Protestantism.

“The man chosen for this experiment by Diana of Poitiers and the Cardinal of Lorraine was a workman employed by the king’s tailor.
This unfortunate man being brought into the King’s presence, defended his religious principles with great firmness and dignity, and interrupting Diana as she advanced to make a remark, he exclaimed, ‘Madam, rest satisfied with having infected France with your infamy, but touch not those things which appertain to God.’ The King at these words, furious beyond control, swore he would see him burnt alive.

“Henry was present at the execution, but was so overcome that he was obliged to leave the window. The martyr, enduring the horrible suffering with the greatest courage and firmness, kept his eyes fixed upon the King, who, horror-stricken and terrified, fled, saying that never again would he witness so horrible a sight.”— Michélet.

 1840. 1073 Sir Thomas More expounding the Scriptures to his family before his execution. "For some time preceding his condemnation, Sir Thomas

More no longer feared death, but even wished for it. All his conversation tended towards that subject; he felt the necessity of speaking of it, partly to deceive nature itself, partly to prepare his family for it by degrees. He entertained them of the ineffable joys of heaven, of the tortures of hell. He told them how glorious it is, for the sake of Our Saviour Jesus Christ, to endure confinement, the loss of riches, or even life itself. And when by such eloquent discourse he had exalted the minds of his children, he would confide to them all the misfortunes which he foresaw were to happen."

1832. 239 The saint manufactory. "This shop is one of the most amusing things in the city. Here is displayed the whole machinery of Neapolitan devotion; crucifixes, Madonnas, saints, angels, and souls in purgatory. As I passed one day, two Capuchin friars were driving a hard bargain with the saint-maker for a bunch of cherubs suspended from the ceiling, while some country-women brought their household images to be newly painted and repaired."

She was to bid farewell to her earthly friends. I witnessed their last embrace, and I saw the doors close that separated them for ever."
- (Elected A.R.A.)
1834. 325 The festa of Pie di Grotta. "The busy hum of men, women and children, awakened me at early morning. I dressed hastily; and reaching the Chiaia, found it already a scene of great gaiety. The people had been out before sunrise to pay their devotions to the Madonna of the grotto of Posilipo, and were returning laden with the fruits of the country, or bearing in triumph the cane of the marshes—its broad leaves waving in the wind. The fishermen had hauled up their nets on the beach, and left the bay free for boats, which were now seen passing from Santa Lucia to Mergyllina, gaily decorated, and full of happy groupes, all going to the shrine of this celebrated Madonna, whose interposition had once saved the city from destruction."

283 Festa della Madonna del Arco.

"Our Lady of the Arch is the most popular object of worship in all the Kingdom of Naples. The church at the foot of Vesuvius, which contains this wonder-working image, is full of votive pictures commemorating her miracles. The Feast of Pentecost is dedicated to her, and the inhabitants of the cities and the mountains come in crowds to do penance at her shrine. Gratitude amongst these simple people takes the character of the wildest enthusiasm. They cut down branches of trees and hang them round with pictures of the Madonna, and other articles purchased at this holy fair. With these standards thus fantastically decorated, their heads crowned with garlands of the ivy and the vine, the family groups arrive at their several homes in Bacchanalian procession, dancing the Tarantella by the way, and singing wild songs in praise of the Madonna del Arco, who heals all their diseases, satisfies all their desires, and answers all their prayers."

1836. 207 The confessional of the black crucifix. "In the little church of San Giovanni, at Cantazure, in Calabria Ultra, there was an altar, surmounted by a black crucifix, and a confessional near it, to which the prejudices of the people had attached a notion of peculiar solemnity. On the eve of the festival of the saint, in the year 1824, a contadina of interesting appearance presented herself at this place. What disclosure was made the seal of the church forbids to tell; but the confession was scarce over, and she was listening in the deepest contrition to the admonitions, and responding to the prayers of the holy father, when a man started from concealment, and with the coltello, with which an Italian is always armed, laid her dead at the confessor's feet. The murderer was her husband; he had been known to suspect his wife's fidelity, and, it is supposed, had gained from her penitence, the confirmation of his fears. He fled to the hills and escaped justice; the church, immediately abandoned by priests and people, has never been again consecrated. The black crucifix, seen amidst its gloomy and deserted ruins, recalls the tragic story, and presents to the passer-by an impressive lesson on the dreadful effects of the disorders of the passions."

1836. 260 The house of mourning.

"Tired with the buffoonery of the carnival, I turned out of the public street, and came suddenly on a house in which were burning the funeral lights: the door stood open; I entered the room, and saw a child laid out on a bier decorated with flowers, according to Neapolitan custom; the mother was kneeling by its side; her friends, occupied with the gaieties of the season, had left her to mourn alone. The contrast between the noisy mummery of the street, and the silence of the chamber of death, made an impression on my mind not soon to be forgotten. As I stood, a masker, with a guitar in his hand, came so near the window, to serenade some girls in a neighbouring balcony, that the sounds struck on the mourner's ear, and she raised her head with a wild expression of reproach, as if to ask why her sorrows were insulted by the notes of mirth; but she soon fell again into the attitude of grief. On enquiry I found the child was her only son, and she was a widow."

1837. 42 The lesson. "The sound of the lively tambourine is heard amidst the rocks and hills surrounding the Bay of Naples, giving cheerfulness to solitude. On those feasts of the church in which labour is forbidden, the rude loggia of a vine-dresser's cottage becomes a scene of domestic gaiety. The different members of the family, dressed in their holiday clothes, after attending divine service in the chapel of the neighbouring convent, and eating their frugal meal in the open air, will spend the rest of the day in dancing the Tarantella; and the youngest children are taught the steps of this fantastic dance with as much care, on the afternoon of a festa, as they are taught to recite the pater-noster in the morning."

164 The toilet. "The 8th of September (the festa of Pie' di Grotta) is the only day in the year in which the peasantry are admitted to the gardens of the Villa Reale at Naples. They come from the surrounding hills in their gayest costume; they dine and sleep under the trees, and on waking, adjust their dress for the afternoon's dance, or for a sight of the King and royal family, who on that day go in procession to do honour to the virgin of the Grotta."

a saint's day. "One of the earliest lessons a Neapolitan mother teaches her child is how to dance the Tarantella."

1840. 266 Study of a group of mountaineers returning from the Festa of Monte Vergine. "The Madonna worshipped at Monte Vergine, near Avelino, is celebrated throughout the country for her miraculous powers. Everybody goes to her festa; mothers are especially anxious to present their children to the Virgin at this auspicious season; and on their return, filled with gratitude for her favour, they make the mountains echo the sounds of joy and gladness.

"An Asiatic convert is sometimes seen carrying the picture of his new deity with as much devotion, and blowing the conch with as much fervour, as if he had been a good Catholic all his life."

1842. 92 Maria. "Poor Maria is sitting upon a bank, playing her vespers upon her pipe, with her little goat beside her."—Tristram Shandy.

- 95 Dorotea disguised as a shepherd boy. "The curate and his companions heard and understood all the words clearly; and forasmuch as they conjectured those plaints were delivered very near unto them, they did all arise to search out the plaintiff; and having gone some twenty steps thence, they beheld a youth behind a rock, sitting under an ash tree. He sate washing of his feet in the clear stream that glided that way."—Don Quixote by Shelton.

- 123 The lesson. "The cottage stood on the brow of a rock that overhung the Gulf of Salerno. The family of the vine-dresser were out on the loggia. It was a festa day. They had attended divine service at the convent chapel; had returned to their frugal dinner, and in the fulness of cheerful enjoyment the mother was teaching her child the steps of the Tarantella, while the grandmother touched the tambourine, and the father looked on delighted. In a corner, a shepherd was telling his tale to a young girl, who was perhaps a relation or servant of the family.

1843. 114 The Confession.

- 143 The Holy Man. "In every convent there is one monk more remarkable for sanctity than the rest. This individual is revered by the neighbouring peasantry, who crowd around him, and not content with plucking his gown to share the good man's smile, they kiss the hem of his garment to obtain his morning blessing."

- 168 A festa day. One of the earliest lessons a Neapolitan

- 485 The sailor, engaged to marry after his next voyage, returns with a sickness that carries him to his grave. "Still long she nurseth him; etc."—Crabbe.
- 1068 Study for a picture in the collection of R. Vernon, Esq. A little girl, left in the artist's studio, was found on his return whimsically dressed in a man's hat, an old woman's jacket and petticoat, and other articles of Italian costume.
1844. 211 John proclaiming the Messiah the morning after the baptism, "Again, the next day after, John stood and two of his disciples, and looking upon Jesus as he walked, he saith, Behold the Lamb of God!"—John, chap. i, ver. 35-36.
Victoria Road, Kensington.
1845. 92 Peasants from the country bringing fruit into Naples on the morning of the festa of Pié di Grotta.
- "Of all the deities of the Neapolitans (and their name is Legion) there is no one which obtains more distinguished worship than the Madonna of the grotto of Posilippo. History tells of many miraculous interpositions of this illustrious Lady for the preservation of the city and the people; a sentiment therefore of deep gratitude makes her festa the most remarkable day in the year. The King, Court, and Ministers of State together with all the military that can be assembled, go in grand procession to prostrate themselves before the altar and acknowledge the power of the delegated Queen of Heaven; in short,
- on the 8th of September, all the world is in Naples. But to the quiet observer, the scenes of early morning are more interesting than courtly splendour and military parade, etc."
1846. 107 A Neapolitan boy and girl dancing the Tarantella.
- 116 An Italian cottage door.
- 117 Cupid and Psyche. Painted for H.R.H. Prince Albert. Psyche returning from the infernal regions with the vase of celestial beauty (obtained from Proserpine at the command of Venus), is tempted by vanity and curiosity to lift the lid of the mysterious treasure. "Why should I be so silly as to carry all this beauty to Venus, without stealing a little for myself?" Alas! instead of beauty there issues from the vase a noxious vapour, which throws poor Psyche into a deep sleep—and she must fall from the rocks, but that Cupid, always hovering round the object of his love, flies to her protection, revives her from her trance, and restores her to animation and enjoyment."—Apuleius.
- 300 Making a nun. "The spoliation is the most interesting part of the ceremony. I shall not soon forget the clash of the cruel scissors, which the abbess wielded with a hand as remorseless as that of Atropos . . . The bridal jewels and the hair being both received in a silver salver, and deposited on the altar. The new nun dressed by the sisters in the shroud-like habit of the order, is again led forth in procession to the outer chapel, to receive the veil from the hands of the bishop, and the ring by which he says he marries her to Jesus Christ, etc. . . . Once more, and for the last time, she is allowed to embrace her friends. The doors are then closed which separate her for ever from the world."

1847. 965 Cupid and Psyche.—From the Fable of Apuleius.

1848. 36 The vintage in the claret vineyards of the south of France, on the banks of the Gironde. "Tired and exhausted by a night passed in the Bay of Biscay, I was too happy to get on shore at Paullac just at the hour in the morning when the vineyards were animated by cheerful labour. I took the best sort of vehicle the country could furnish, and found myself at once amidst the estates of Lafitte, Mouton, La Tour, etc., etc. The mist of early morning was rolling off in clouds, and the sun beginning to catch on the groups, and to throw streaks of shadow across the distance. Nothing could be more in harmony with my anticipations. I soon informed myself of the whole of the simple process. The girls gathered the grapes with scissors; boys took their full baskets and supplied them with empty ones. The boys then carried their load to the side of the vineyard, where the bastes or tubs, were filled carefully, and carried by the young men to the charrette aux bœufs, and thus conveyed to the wine-presses. Each troupe of pickers had a superior with a long stick in his hand, by which he guided and directed the operations. The Garde de Vigne—his gun on his shoulder—made excursions from the rudely-constructed cabane, which was his habitation night and day, and the women took advantage of his absence to put their children to sleep in the shade. To complete the scene, the master rode round the grounds with a sun umbrella over his head, and an expression of anxiety in his countenance which indicated the value of the harvest, and the importance of the arrangements in which he took so deep an interest."

1848. 670 Dorothea surprised by Cardenio, the curate, and the barber. (The figures by T. Uwins, Esq.; the landscape by Mrs. Arnold.) "At the stir they made in advancing, the beauteous phantom raised her head, and parted her hair with both her hands, to see what occasioned the noise."—Don Quixote.

1849. 188 Sir Guyon (fighting for the virtue of Temperance) under the conduct of his spiritual guide, destroys the enchantments that have tempted his companions from their duty. "The constant payre heard all, etc." — The Faerie Queene, Legend of Sir Guyon.

1850. 151 Psyche returning from the infernal regions, with the casket of beauty.—See Fable of Apuleius.

967 Development. "There is nothing I know of to compare with the image shops and saint manufactorys of Naples; here is the perfection of development. Diana of the Ephesians must yield the palm to the modern Queen of Heaven."

997 Holy Romuald and the Devil. "There used to be rare work with him and the Devil there in yonder cell, etc."—Southey.

1851. 35 Ulysses, anxious to return to his faithful wife Penelope, is unwillingly detained in the Island of Calypso.—Odyssey, Book V.

"Who has not heard of Calypso? Her grove crowned with alders and poplars? Her grotto, against which the luxurious vine laid forth its purple grapes? Her ever-new delights, crystal fountains, running brooks, meadows flowing with sweet balm-gentle, and with violet . . . a memorable example of married love, and a worthy

- instance how dear to every good man his country is, was exhibited by Ulysses. He was pensive and melancholy in the midst of pleasure. His heart was on the seas, making voyages to Ithaca.
- ... Minerva was indignant that so wise and brave a man should be held in effeminate bondage. At her request Jove ordered Mercury to go down to the earth to command Calypso to dismiss her guest. . . . His message struck a horror, checked by love, through all the faculties of Calypso."
- Charles Lamb.
1851. 172 The parasol. "A fisher boy had rigged a cotton handkerchief upon split canes into a parasol, which, with childish gallantry, he carried over his sister and her pet."
- 175 Children at play in hop-picking time; sketched in the Farnham plantations.
1852. 162 Judas. "He went out, and it was night."—John, xiii, 30.
- 217 The vesper bell. "The Catholic who hears that vesper bell, Howe'er employed must send a prayer to heaven, etc."—Southey.
1853. 13 The thorny and the flowery path.
1854. 25 The cottage toilette.
- 79 A cabin in a vineyard. "A mother having laid her children to sleep in the rudely-constructed cabane of the Garde de Vigne, returns, with natural anxiety, to snatch a moment's look at them, whenever her course of labour brings her to the spot. The man's dog, left in care of his master's things, assumes the guardianship of the children, and seems to say 'all is well.'" 1854. 421 The Votary of St. Antonio, Naples.
- 483 The faithful shepherdess. "She's called the virgin of the grove, etc."—Beaumont and Fletcher.
1855. 10 In the wood. From the German of Ferdinand Freiligrath. "I walk within the wood alone, etc."
- 1090 Study from nature, Winchendon, Bucks.
- 1091 Miss Kirby, authoress of the "Leicestershire Flora," "Stories from the Classics for the Young," etc. Staines, Middlesex.
1856. 261 A fisherman's wife—Gulf of Salerno.
- 454 Gleaners leaving the stubble-field.
- 473 Uncle Tom; a study from life.
- 893 Psyche returning from the infernal regions with the basket of beauty obtained from Proserpine.

At parting, the Lord-Treasurer, out of pure affection slipped into his hand an order upon the Treasury for £1,000, and then went to his chariot. Marvell, looking at the paper, calls after the Treasurer, 'My lord, I request another moment.' They went up again to the garret, and Jack the servant-boy was called. 'Jack, child, what had I for dinner yesterday?' 'Don't you remember, Sir? you had the little shoulder of mutton that you ordered me to bring from a woman in the market.' 'Very right, child; what have I for dinner to-day?' 'Don't you know, Sir, that you bid me lay by the blade bone to broil?' 'My Lord, do you hear that? Andrew Marvell's dinner is provided; there's your piece of paper—I want it not. "This warning sank so deep into the queen's mind, that after a little pausing, taking her son by the hand, she said, My Lord Archbishop, here he is, for my own part I will never deliver him; but if you will needs have him, take him, and at your hands I will require him: and therewith weeping bitterly, dear childe (saith she) let me kiss thee before we part. God knows whether we shall ever meet again; and so the childe, weeping as fast as she, went along with the archbishop to the Star Chamber, where the lord protector and other lords had stayed all the while for his coming back."

"I received one morning a message from poor Goldsmith that he was in great distress, and begging that I would come to him as soon as possible. I sent him a guinea, and promised to come to him directly. I accordingly went as soon as I was dressed, and found that his landlady had arrested him for his rent, at which he was in a violent passion. I perceived that he had already changed my guinea, and had got a bottle of Madeira and a glass before him. I put the cork in the bottle, desired he would be calm, and began to talk of the means by which he might be extricated. He then told me that he had a novel ready for the press, which he produced to me. I looked into it, and saw its merit: told the landlady I should soon return: and having gone to a bookseller sold it for £60."—Boswell.

1844. 414 Scene from the early life of Oliver Goldsmith.

"He was a tolerable proficient in the French language, and played on the German flute with a degree of taste something above mediocrity. Thus qualified, he travelled on, anxious to gratify his curiosity, and doubtful of the means of subsistence; his classical knowledge, however, afforded him occasional entertainment in the religious houses, while his musical talents continued to feed and lodge him among the merry poor of Flanders."

449 La Fleur's departure from Montreuil.

"C'est un garçon de bonne fortune," said the landlord, pointing through the window to half a dozen wenches who had got round about La Fleur, and were most kindly taking leave of him, as the postillion was leading out the horses. La Fleur kissed all their hands round and round again; and thrice he wiped his eyes, and thrice he promised he would bring them all pardons from Rome. The young fellow, said the landlord, is beloved by all the town, and there is scarce a corner in Montreuil where the want of him will not be felt; but he has one misfortune in the world, continued he, he is always in love."—Sterne.

"Seven years, my Lord, have now past, since I waited in your outward rooms, or was repulsed from your door; during which time I have been pushing on my work through difficulties of which it is useless to complain, and have brought it, at last, to the verge of publication, without one act of assistance, one word of encouragement, or one smile of favour. Such treatment I did not expect, for I never had a patron before."—Boswell.

1846. 545 The disgrace of Lord Clarendon, after his last interview with the King—scene in Whitehall Palace in 1667.

"After two hours' discourse, the King rose without saying anything, but appeared not well pleased with all that had been said, and the Duke of York found he was offended with the last part of his discourse. The garden, that used to be private, had now many in it to observe the countenance of the King when he came out of the room; and when the chancellor returned, the Lady [Castlemaine], the Lord Arlington, and Mr. May, looked together out of her balcony with gaiety and triumph—which all the people observed."

"The crowds were so great within doors, that tables with clerks were set in the streets. In this motley throng were blended all ranks, all professions, and all parties—churchmen and dissenters, whigs and tories, country gentlemen and brokers. 1848. 416 Highgate Fields, during the Great Fire of London in 1666.

“The poor inhabitants were dispersed about St. George’s Fields and Moor-fields, as far as Highgate, and several miles in circle, some under tents, some under miserable huts and hovels, many without a rag or any necessary utensils, bed or board, who from delicateness, riches, and easy accommodations in stately and well furnished houses, were now reduced to extreme misery and poverty. . . . I then went towards Islington and Highgate, where one might have seen 200,000 people of all ranks and degrees, dispersed and lying along by their heaps of what they could save from the fire, deplored their loss, and though ready to perish for hunger and destitution, yet not asking one penny of relief, which to me appeared a stranger sight than any I had yet beheld.”

587 Interview between Charles II and Nell Gwynne, as witnessed by Evelyn.

“I thence walked with him (the King) through St. James’s Park to the garden, where I both saw and heard a very familiar discourse between him and Mrs. Nellie, as they called an impudent comedian; she looking out of her garden on a terrace, at the top of the wall, and the King wending on the green walk under it. I was heartily sorry at this scene.”

(The first of a series of eight pictures for the Commons' Corridor in the Houses of Parliament; painted by order of the Royal Commission.) "Montrose, as proud of the cause in which he was to suffer, had clad himself in rich attire—more becoming a bridegroom, says one of his enemies, than a criminal going to the gallows! . . . at the foot of the scaffold a further and parting insult was reserved for him; the executioner brought Dr. Wishart's narrative of his exploits, and his own manifesto, to hang around his neck; but Montrose himself assisted in binding them, and, smiling at this new token of his enemies' malice, merely said, 'I did not feel more honoured when His Majesty sent me the Garter.'"—Lord Mahon.

1853. 512 Joséphine signing the act of her divorce; scene in the Grand Cabinet of the Emperor Napoleon, at the Tuileries, on the evening of the 16th of December, 1809. "In the centre of the apartment was placed an armchair, and before it a small table with a writing apparatus of gold; all eyes were directed to that spot, when a door opened, and Joséphine, pale, but calm, appeared, leaning on the arm of her daughter. . . . Both were dressed in the simplest manner, Joséphine's dress of white muslin exhibited not a single ornament; she moved slowly and with wonted grace to the seat prepared for her, and there listened to the act of separation. Behind her chair stood Hortense, and a little further on, towards Napoleon, Eugène Beauharnais, trembling as if incapable of supporting himself. . . . Then, sitting down, she took the pen from the Count Regnault de St. Jean d'Angely, and signed it."—Mémoires.

1854. 403 The last sleep of Argyle before his execution, A.D. 1685. (The second of a series of eight pictures to be painted for the Commons' Corridor, by order of the Royal Commission.) "So effectually had religious faith and hope, co-operating with natural courage and equanimity, composed his spirits, that on the very day on which he was to die, he dined with appetite, conversed with gaiety at table, and, after his last meal, lay down, as he was wont, to take a short slumber, in order that his body and mind might be in full vigour when he should mount the scaffold. At this time one of the Lords of the Council, who had probably been bred a Presbyterian, and had been seduced by interest to join the oppressing the church of which he had once been a member, came to the castle, with a message from his brethren, and demanded admittance to the Earl. It was answered that the Earl was asleep. The privy councillor thought that this was a subterfuge, and insisted on entering. The door of the cell was softly opened, and there lay Argyle on the bed, sleeping in his irons the placid sleep of infancy. The conscience of the renegade smote him."

"At last, the Queen, having collected all her energies, seated herself, drew her son near to her, and placed both her hands on his little shoulders; calm, motionless, so absorbed in grief, that she neither wept nor sighed. She said to him, in a grave and solemn voice: 'My child, you are going to leave us: remember your duties when I am no longer near to remind you of them; never forget the merciful God who has appointed you

"Darnley placed himself on the sofa at his wife's side, she asking him if he had supped. He muttered something, threw his arm round her waist, and kissed her. As she shrunk from him, half surprised, the curtain was again lifted, and against the dark background, alone, his corslet glimmering through the folds of a crimson sash, a steel cap on his head, and his face pale, as if he had risen from the grave, stood the figure of Ruthven. Glaring for a moment on Darnley, and answering his kiss with one word, 'Judas,' Mary Stuart confronted the awful apparition, and demanded the meaning of the intrusion.

Of the goodly company there, beside the child-couple, I saw the fair Queen, gravely clad; King Edward near, and the Prince bravely attired. Opposite stood Richard, Duke of Gloucester, whose brow was a frontispiece to mighty thoughts. It was the eve of the Epiphany: if the wise men who wended to Bethlehem like the match, time shall tell."

1869. 144 Grinling Gibbons' first introduction at Court. "1st March. I caused Mr. Gibbons to bring to Whitehall his excellent piece of carving, where, being come, I advertised His Majesty . . .

No sooner was he entered and cast his eye on the work, but he was astonished at the curiosity of it. . . . He commanded it should be immediately carried to the Queen's side to show her. It was carried up into her bed-chamber, where she was, and the King being called away, left us with the Queen, believing she would have bought it, it being a crucifix; but His Majesty was gone, a French peddling woman, one Madame de Boord, who used to bring petticoats, and fans, and baubles out of France to the ladies, began to find fault with several things in the work, which she understood no more than an ass or a monkey, so as in a kind of indignation I caused the person who brought it to carry it back to the chamber, finding the Queen so much governed by an ignorant French woman, and this incomparable artist had his labour for his pains."—Evelyn's Diary.

1870. 203 Judge Jeffreys and Richard Baxter. "In a commentary on the New Testament he had commented with some bitterness on the persecution which the Dissenters suffered. An information was filed. Baxter begged that he might be allowed some time to prepare his defence; it was on the day on which Oates was pilloried in Palace Yard that the illustrious chief of the Puritans came to Westminster Hall to make his request. Jeffreys burst into a storm of invectives; 'Not a minute,' he cried, 'to save his life, I can deal with saints as well as sinners. There stands Oates on one side of the pillory, and if Baxter stood on the other, the two greatest rogues in the kingdom would stand together.'"—Macaulay.

363 The daughter of a King. "For my own part, I only asked for the simple necessities of life, and these were often refused me with asperity. I was, however, enabled to keep myself clean; I had at least soap and water, and I swept out my room every day. One day a man, whom I afterwards knew to be Robespierre, entered my cell, and after having examined my books, 260 Doctor Goldsmith. "The only instance remembered of his practice was in the case of a Mrs. Sidebotham, described as one of his acquaintances of the better sort; whose waiting woman was often afterwards known to retail with what a ludicrous assumption of dignity he would show off his cloak and his cane as he strutted, with his queer little figure stuck through as with a huge pin by his wandering sword, in the sick room of her mistress. At last it one day happened that his opinion differing somewhat from the apothecary in attendance, the lady thought her apothecary the safer councillor, and Goldsmith quitted the house in high indignation."—Forster.

1872. 182 The return from flight. Louis XVI, Marie Antoinette, the Dauphin, Dauphiness, and Princess Elizabeth insulted by the mob on their road back to Paris after their interception at Varennes by the postmaster Drouet. "At starting, the King's evil genius was apparent. . . .

He was most strongly advised . . . to trust himself to the simplest and least remarkable conveyance . . . From a natural sentiment he disliked to be separated from the Queen . . . so he gave orders for the construction of a berline, . . . a cumbrous top-heavy vehicle, which required six horses to draw it.

"The scheme of flight had failed . . . Henceforth the life of the monarch, of the Queen, of his family, the throne, and the safety of France, were at the mercy of the most capricious people."

"Charles IX, accompanied by his mother and brother, visited the suffering Coligny. During the visit the sombre and menacing attitude of some, the whisperings, the goings and comings, the signs of want of respect in persons near the apartment, and the murmured conversation of the King with Coligny, excited the anger of Catherine and her son . . . On his arrival, the King first ordered the admiral's people to leave the room, except Teligny and his wife (the son-in-law and daughter of Coligny)." —Rene de Bouille.

1862. 583 Scene at the Louvre in 1649. The despair of Henrietta Maria at the death of her husband, Charles I. "The grief that cannot speak Whispers the o'erfraught heart, and bids it break."

"To all our exhortations and arguments, the Père continues, our Queen was deaf and insensible. At last, awed by her appalling grief, we ceased talking, and stood round her in perturbed silence, some sighing, some weeping,—all with mournful and sympathizing looks bent on her immovable countenance." —Miss Strickland.

1863. 386 "Queen Mary quitted Stirling Castle on the morning of Wednesday, April 23, unconscious that she was taking her last farewell of those royal bowers where she had spent her happiest days, and that she was neither to behold them nor her only child again. When she had bestowed her parting embrace and blessing on that beloved object of her maternal solicitude, she delivered him into the hands of the Earl of Mar herself, and exacted at the same time from that nobleman a solemn pledge that he would guard his precious charge from every peril, and never give him up, under any pretext, 1866. 385 Palissy the Potter. "The potter had looked forward to a day when the result of many months' labour would enable him to meet impatient creditors, and relieve the pressing wants of his hungry and scantily-clad children; his hopes were high, and with reason; fame would recompense him for all his trials, and fortune would be within his grasp. The furnace had been fired, and the potter bided the time to bring forth the works that were to be his glories. The moment had arrived, the wife had gone out to summon the creditors to witness his triumph; they stand at the entrance appalled, whilst she exhausts her wrath in imprecations; the children gathered round, or stare in wonderment at the broken-down and miserable father—for strewed on the ground at his feet are all the produce of his toil and his genius—deformed pieces, utterly valueless. The flints that formed the walls of the furnace had been detached by the heat, and had ruined the whole of the great works that were baking in it." —Morley.

the ruin of her fatherland. We can picture to ourselves how earnestly the destined heroine—the future leader of armies—might question those chance travellers, whom, as we are told, she delighted to relieve, and for whose use she would often resign her own chamber, as to each fresh report from the changeful scene of war."—Lord Mahon.

1868. 467 Sion house, 1553. "Lady Jane Grey, of retired habits and delicate health, on being addressed as Queen, trembled, uttered a shriek, and fell to the ground. On her recovery, says Lingard, she observed to those around her that she seemed to herself a very unfit person to be a queen. . . . She refused to accept the title, but overcame at last by the entreaties of her mother, and above all by her husband, she submitted to their wish, and was prevailed on to relinquish her own judgment."

1869. 211 Scene from the childhood of the old Pretender. "Four of the number, who were too much impaired in constitution to return home, continued at St. Germans. One day, when listlessly strolling near the iron palisades of the palace, they saw a boy of six years old about to get into a coach emblazoned with the Royal arms of Great Britain; this child was the son of the exiled King and Queen, the disinherited Prince of Wales, who was going to join the promenade of the French court at Marle. He recognized the unfortunate emigrants, and instead of entering the coach, made a sign for them to approach. They advanced respectfully, and spontaneously offered the mark of homage which, according to the custom of the times, was accorded to persons of Royal rank by kneeling and kissing his hands, which they bathed with their tears. The princely boy graciously raised them, and with that touching sensibility which is often prematurely developed by early misfortunes, expressed his grateful appreciation of their loyalty. He told them he had often heard of their valour, and that it made him proud, and that he had wept for their misfortunes as much as he had done for those of his own parents; but he hoped a day would come that would convince them that they had not made such great sacrifices for ungrateful princes."—Miss Strickland.

The emperor heartily thanked Josephine for this testimony of her affection. It was a day of happiness to him."—Histoire de Napoléon II, Duc de Reichstadt.

1871. 27 The fortunes of little Fritz.

"When Frederick was four years old, a remarkable prophecy was made concerning him. At that time many Swedish officers were in Berlin, who had been made prisoners at the taking of Stralsund on Christmas Day, 1715. One of the officers, named Croom, had the reputation of being able to read the stars, and to read the future in the lines of the hand; the whole city was full of his prophecies. When the Crown Prince was brought to him, Croom foretold various unpleasant circumstances that would beset him in his youth, but that in riper years he would become Emperor, and be one of the first of princes in Europe. With the exception of the empire, all the rest of the prophecy was perfectly fulfilled."—Kugler.

As she had no dog and I had an excellent one, I was ordered to keep close by her; and Betty had nothing to do but to sit and sew. . . . 1878. 380 One of the last lays of Robert Burns (“Oh, wert thou in the cauld blast”). “The lady (young Jessy) relates that one morning she had a call from the poet, when he offered, if she would play him any tune of which she was fond, and for which she desired new verses, to gratify her in her wish. . . . She played over several times the air of an old song. . . . Burns sat down, and in a very few minutes he produced the beautiful song of ‘Oh, wert thou in the cauld blast.’ The anecdote is a trivial one in itself, but we feel that the circumstances, the deadly illness of the poet, the beneficent worth of Miss Lewars, and the reasons for his grateful desire of obliging her, gave it value.”—Dr. Robert Chambers.

475 Ulysses and the Sirens. The Sirens, who with their melodious voices lured all navigators to destruction on the dangerous coast of Sicily were, according to classical tradition, creatures having the body of a bird with the head of a beautiful woman. They received this form from Ceres, as a punishment, because they had not assisted her daughter Persephone when carried away by Pluto. They were informed by the oracle that as soon as any passed by without heeding their songs they should perish. Ulysses, warned by Circe, stopped the ears of his companions and ordered himself to be bound to the mast, and so successfully passed the fatal coast. After this the Sirens, in their disappointment, threw themselves into the sea and perished.

- 217 "Victoria Regina." "On Tuesday at 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ a.m. the scene closed (death of William IV at Windsor Castle), and in a very short time the Archbishop of Canterbury and Lord Conyngham, the Chamberlain, set out to announce the event to their young sovereign. They reached Kensington Palace about five; they knocked, they rang, they thumped for a considerable time before they could rouse the porter at the gates; they were again kept waiting in the courtyard, then turned into one of the lower rooms, where they seemed forgotten by everybody. They rang the bell, desired that the attendant of the Princess Victoria might be sent to inform H.R.H. that they requested an audience on business of importance. After another delay and another ringing to inquire the cause, the attendant was summoned, who stated that the Princess was in such a sweet sleep, she could not venture to disturb her. Then they said, 'We are come to the Queen on business of State, and even her sleep must give way to that.' It did, and to prove that she did not keep them waiting, in a few minutes she came into the room in a loose white nightgown, and shawl, her nightcap thrown off, her hair falling upon her shoulders, her feet in slippers, tears in her eyes, but perfectly collected and dignified." — From the Diaries of Miss Frances Williams Wynn.

- 194 The sketch of a monument for perpetuating the memory of the late Lord Nelson. "His Majesty, on the 10th of December, 1805, having signified his commands to the Royal Academy, by his Secretary of State, the Rt. Hon. Lord Hawkesbury, for the members of that body to consider the best mode of perpetuating the memory of Lord Nelson; in obedience to that command this design was made, composed of three branches of art which constitute the Academy: Painting, being best calculated, by its powers of combining imagery, to give allegorical figures their full effect, and to form a composition expressive of Lord Nelson's nautical achievements, and the immortality of his greatness. The leading point in the picture represents Victory presenting the dead body of the hero to Britannia, after the battle of Trafalgar, from the arms of Neptune, with the trident of his dominions. Britannia sits in shaded gloom, as expressive of that deep regret which overwhelmed the United Kingdom at the loss of so distinguished a character. In the other parts of the picture are seen the concomitant events of his life, and the sons and daughters of the union preparing the mournful sable to his memory. The winged boys around his body are figurative that the influence of his genius still exists. The sculptured part of this design is best calculated to give the sepulchre its appropriate character; it is a plain stone of considerable magnitude, and of a double cube in form, without ornaments or inscription, except the honoured name of Nelson encircled with the Emblem of eternity. The supporters of this honoured stone, on the right, are a group of British seamen, as seen when opposed to the enemy in battle, inspired by the genius of Nelson, and ready to defend their country's cause; on the left, another group, composed of marines from the three nations which now form the United Kingdom, reflecting, and participating with their country, in the loss of so great a commander. Architecture, ever denoting civilization, has inscribed on its frieze the honours which Parliament decreed to the family of Nelson; over which is the tablet containing the number of battles he had been in, and terminated by his crest, surrounding which are the insignia of Victory and Virtue, and the spoils of the vanquished enemy, with the hulls of the San Josef and San Nicholas, which Nelson boarded and captured. The columns rising from the base, on which are prows of British men-of-war, are figurative of that glorious immortality which the general design of this sketch of a monument exhibits. The model for the monument, which is to be executed for perpetuating the memory of Lord Nelson, having been decided on by the Committee of Taste, Mr. West, after making this design, painted this picture, to accompany his other works on the subject of Lord Nelson's victories."

1811. 63 Omnia Vincit Amor, or the Power of Love in the Three Elements.
1816. 116 The Death of Lord Nelson, or the Naval Victory off Trafalgar; being one of the most distinguished that ever occurred in the annals of Great Britain for heroism and national importance. Mr. West, conceiving that such an event demanded a composition every way appropriate to its dignity and high importance, formed it into an Epic Composition. This enabled him to give it that character and interest which the subject demanded. Availing himself of that character in composition, he laid the heroic Nelson wounded on the quarter-deck of his ship, The Victory, with his captain (now Sir Thomas Hardy), holding the dying Hero by the hand, and from a paper in the other, announcing to him the number of ships taken from the enemy's Combined Fleet. The surrounding groups of gallant officers and men are sympathizing with each other in the sufferings of their wounded Friend and expiring Commander; and the dead and wounded in the several groups are introduced as episodes, to commemorate those with honour, who fell on board the Hero's ship in that distinguished action. The ships in the distance display the flags and signals of the other triumphant British Admirals, as well as those of the vanquished enemy, which are marked with all the wrack of battle, and that defeat which took place on the 21st of October, 1805.

1836. 1 A cottage girl and her grandmother.
- 21 Cortes, in the chapel of the convent of Rabida, reading to Pizarro an account of their own atrocities, and a malediction upon them written by the Abbot Perez. "Here is a little book," said the Franciscan at last, 'the work of him in his shroud below. It tells of things you have mentioned; and were Cortes and Pizarro here, it might perhaps make them reflect for a moment.' The youngest smiled as he took it into his hand. He read it aloud with an unfaltering voice; but when he laid it down a silence ensued, nor was he seen to smile again that night. 'The curse is heavy,' he said, 'but Cortes may live to disappoint him —aye, and Pizarro, too.'"—Rogers' Columbus.

- 14, South Audley Street.
1819. 1179 A peasant girl; part of a monument to be erected at Llandegai, North Wales, in memory of the late Lord Penrhyn.
- 1238 An Unfinished Relievo in marble; part of a monument to the late Lord Penrhyn. This Relievo is designed to represent the condition in which Lord Penrhyn found his tenantry, on coming to his estates in Wales, and the improvement they had experienced by the time of his decease.

The first group illustrates the wild pastoral state of that part of the Principality, exemplified in the child piping among his goats, confined to his native mountains, previous to the opening of the road to Nant Francon.

By the formation of the Quay of Port Penrhyn, and employment furnished in the neighbouring slate quarries, habits of industry were promoted; and this is purposed to be expressed by the second compartment of the relief.

His Lordship's benevolent care, in providing the means for their religious instruction, by erecting a chapel, is shewn in the third compartment. The happy result of his efforts is attempted to be displayed in the last compartment, which represents the plenteous fruits of agriculture superseding the scanty means of pastoral life; and the happiness of - his tenantry is implied by the jocund harvest dance, while the vine, "which makes glad the heart of man," is distributed over the whole, and crowns his patriotic labours.

1820. 1026 Hero and Leander; an alto-relievo in marble.

Nought else exalts nor grieves
The rose at heart, that heaves
With love of her own leaves, and lips that pair
I cannot tell what pleasures
Or what pains were,
What pale new loves and treasures
New years will bear;
What beam will fall, what shower,
What grief or joy for dower,
But one thing knows the flower, the flower is fair.”

1822. 126 Chelsea pensioners receiving the London Gazette Extraordinary of Thursday, June 22d, 1815, announcing the Battle of Waterloo!!!

The picture represents an assemblage of pensioners and soldiers in front of the Duke of York public-house, Royal Hospital-row, Chelsea. The light-horseman on the left has just arrived with the Gazettes, and is relating further particulars to his comrades, among whom is a Glengary Highlander who served with General Graham at Barossa.

The Gazette is in the hands of an old pensioner, a survivor of the Seven Years' War, who was at the taking of Quebec with General Wolfe, and is now reading aloud to his companions the details of the Victory of Waterloo. Opposite to him is a black, one of the band of the 1st regiment of Foot Guards, who was in France during the Revolution; was present at the death of Louis XVI., and was afterwards servant to General Moreau, in his campaigns in Germany during the revolutionary war.

Next to the black, in a foraging dress, is an Irish light-horseman, explaining the news to an old pensioner who was with General Elliot during the bombardment of 21 months and 21 days, at the memorable siege of Gibraltar; and behind the black's head is that of a soldier who served with the old Marquis of Granby. Further to the right is a corporal of the Oxford Blues, who was at the battle of Vittoria; and at his feet is a black dog, known to the officers and men by the name of "Old Duke," who followed that regiment all over the Peninsula.

1829. 56 The Spanish Posado. This represents a Guerilla council of war, at which three reverend fathers, a Dominican, a monk of the Escorial, and a Jesuit, are deliberating on some expedient of national defence, with an emissary in the costume of Valencia. Behind them is the posadura, or landlady, serving her guests with chocolate, and the begging student of Salasmanca, with his Lexicon and cigar, making love to her. On the right of the picture a contrabandist of Bilboa enters, upon his mule, and in front of him is an athletic Castilian armed, and a minstrel dwarf, with a Spanish guitar. On the floor are seated the goatherd and his sister, with the muzzled house-dog and pet lamb of the family; and through the open portal in the background, is a distant view of the Guadarama Mountains.

1829. 91 Portrait of the Right Hon. the late Earl of Kellie, Lord-Lieutenant of the County of Fife. Painted for the County Hall, Cupar.

110 Cardinals, Priests, and Roman Citizens washing the Pilgrim's feet. This ceremony takes place during the holy week, in the convent of the Santa Trinitá dei Pellegrini.

128 The defence of Saragossa. The heroine, Augustina, is here represented on the battery, in front of the convent of Santa Engratia, where, her husband being slain, she found her way to the station he had occupied, stepped over his body, took her place at the gun, and declared she would herself avenge his death.

The principal person engaged in placing the gun is Don Joseph Palafox, who commanded during the memorable siege, but who is here represented in the habit of a volunteer. In front of him is the Rev. Father Consolacion, an Augustin Friar, who served with great ability as an engineer, and who, with the crucifix in his hand, is directing at what object the cannon is to be pointed. On the left side of the picture is seen Basilico Boggiiero, a priest, who was tutor to Palafox, celebrated for his share in the defence, and for his cruel fate when he fell into the hands of the enemy. He is writing a despatch to be sent by a carrier pigeon, to inform their distant friends of the subdued energies of the place.

1829. 224 A Roman Princess, with her attendant, washing the female pilgrims' feet.

293 The confessional. Pilgrims confessing in the Basilica of St. Peter's.

298 The Pifferari. Calabrian shepherds, playing their hymns to the Madonna when arriving with the pilgrims in Rome.

403 The Guerilla's departure. He is here taking leave of his Carmelite confessor, to join his confederates in war, and from whom he is receiving a light to his cigar to comfort him on commencing his perilous journey.

N.B.—This picture and Nos. 56 and 128 are part of a series of subjects intended to represent the class of patriots in Spain which the celebrated war of Independence of 1808 called into action.

1830. 63 Portrait of King George the Fourth, representing His Majesty in the Highland dress of the royal tartan, in which he held his court in the Palace of Holyrood House on the 17th of August, 1822.

125 His Majesty King George the Fourth, received by the nobles and people of Scotland, upon his entrance to the Palace of Holyrood House, on the 15th of August, 1822.

"We'll show him wit, we'll show him lair,
With gallant lads and lasses fair;
And what wad kind heart
wish for mair, Carle, now the king's come!"

—Sir Walter Scott.

In the principal station of the picture is represented the King, accompanied by a page and the exon of the yeomen of the guard, with horsemen behind, announcing, by sound of trumpet, to all ranks of his expecting subjects, the arrival of the Royal Visitor to the palace of his ancestors.

In front of His Majesty the Duke of Hamilton, first peer of Scotland, in the plaid of the Earls of Arran, is presenting the keys of the palace of which he is hereditary keeper. On the right of the King is the Duke of Montrose, Lord Chamberlain, pointing towards the entrance of the palace, where is stationed the Duke of Argyll, in his family tartan, as hereditary keeper of the household. Behind him is the crown of Robert the Bruce, supported by Sir Alexander Keith, hereditary knight marshal, attended by his esquires, with the sceptre and sword of state. Near him is carried the mace of the Exchequer, anciently the chancellor's mace, when Scotland was a separate kingdom. On the left of the picture, in the dress of the royal archers who served as the King's body guard, is the late Earl of Hopetoun: and close to him, in the character of historian or bard, is Sir Walter Scott. These are accompanied by a varied crowd, among whom are some females and children, pressing forward with eagerness to see and to welcome their Sovereign upon this joyous and memorable occasion.

1830. 375 The Guerilla's return to his family, being the concluding subject of a series of four pictures, representing scenes characteristic of the events of the late war in Spain.

134 The preaching of Knox before the Lords of the Congregation, 10th June, 1559. "In Dr. M'Crie's Life of this extraordinary person is described the event this picture is intended to represent, which took place during the regency of Mary of Guise, in the parish church of St. Andrews in Fifeshire, where John Knox, having just arrived from Geneva, after an exile of thirteen years, in defiance of a threat of assassination, and while an army in the field was watching the proceedings of his party, appeared in the pulpit and discoursed to a numerous assembly, including many of the clergy, when such was the influence of his doctrine, that the provost, bailies, and inhabitants harmoniously agreed to set up the reformed worship in the town. The church was stripped of all images and pictures, and the monasteries were pulled down.

"Close to the pulpit on the right of Knox are Richard Ballenden, his amanuensis, with Christopher Goodman, his colleague; and, in black, the Knight Templar, Sir James Sandilands, in whose house at Calder the first Protestant sacrament was received. Beyond the latter, in the scholar's cap and gown, is that accomplished student of St. Andrews, the Admirable Crichton. Under the pulpit is Thomas Wood, the precentor, with his hour-glass; the schoolboy below is John Napier, Baron of Merchiston, inventor of the logarithms; and further to the right is a child, which has been brought to be baptized when the discourse is over.

"On the other side of the picture, in red, is the Lord James Stuart, afterwards Regent Murray, beyond is the Earl of Glencairne; and in front, resting on his sword, is the Earl of Morton; behind whom is the Earl of Argyll, whose countess, the half-sister of Queen Mary, and the lady in attendance upon her, make up the chief light of the picture.

"Above this group is John Hamilton, Archbishop of St. Andrews, supported by the Bishop Beaton, of Glasgow, with Quintus Kennedy, the Abbot of Cross Rague, who maintained against Knox a fierce disputation.

"In the gallery is Sir Patrick Learmouth, Provost of St. Andrews, and Laird of Dairsie, and with him two of the bailies. The boy on their left is Andrew Melville, successor of Knox; and beyond him, with other Professors of St. Andrews, is the learned Buchanan; at the back of the gallery a crucifix, attracting the regard of the Catholic penitents, and in the obscurity above is an escutcheon to the memory of Cardinal Beaton."

1835. 64 Christopher Columbus explaining the project of his intended voyage for the discovery of the New World, in the convent of La Rabida.

"A stranger travelling on foot, accompanied by a young boy, stopped one day at the gate of a convent of Franciscan friars, dedicated to Santa Maria de Rabida, and asked of the porter a little bread and water for his child; while receiving this humble refreshment, the guardian of the convent, Friar Juan Perez de Marchena, happening to pass by, was struck by the appearance of the stranger, and observing from his air and accent that he was a foreigner, entered into conversation with him. That stranger was Columbus."

The conference which followed, remarkable for opening a brighter prospect in the fortunes of Columbus, forms the subject of the picture, in which he is represented seated at the convent table, with the prior on his right, to whom he is explaining on a chart the theory upon which his long contemplated discovery is founded. At his left is his son Diego, with a small Italian greyhound at his feet, supposed to have accompanied them on their voyage from Genoa.

At the other side of the picture, resting on the table, is the physician of Palos, Garcia Fernandez, who from scientific knowledge, approved of the enterprise, and whose testimony has recorded this event. Behind him, with the telescope in his hand, is Martin Alonzo Pinzon, one of the most intelligent sea-captains of his day, who, though tarnished in his fame by subsequent desertion, concurred in the practicability of his plans, assisted in the outfit of the expedition, and sailed with Columbus. With this support in confirmation of his own judgment, the prior Juan Perez became the friend and benefactor of Columbus, received his son into the convent to be educated, and furnished to himself a recommendation to Fernando de Talavera, confessor to the Queen, which eventually obtained for him the assistance of the Court in his adventure, and to Spain the credit of his great discovery.

The above particulars were first made known to the English reader in the recent Life of Columbus, by Mr. Washington Irving.

 119 Mary Queen of Scots escaping from Loch Leven Castle. The chief deviser of this enterprise was George Douglas, younger son of the family of Lochleven, whom the Queen had gained over by the prospect of high favour and distinction to attempt her deliverance. He is here represented with the keys in one hand, obtained by stealth from his elder brother, the keeper, while, with the other, he is handing the Queen into the boat, to be conveyed across the lake, where his horses were waiting to expedite her flight to Niddrie. Behind the Queen are the Lady Fleming, Catherine Seaton, and Ronald Graeme, as described by Sir Walter Scott in his tale of "The Abbott."
 144 The Empress Josephine and the fortune-teller. "When fortune placed a crown upon Josephine's head, she told me that the event, extraordinary as it was, had been predicted. It is certain she put faith in fortune-tellers." —Burien.
 The event this picture is intended to represent took place in the island of Martinique, in the West Indies, of which Josephine was a native, when a negress, who offered to tell the fortunes of the party, on looking at her hand, expressed unwanted surprise at the destiny it indicated, which she said was, that Josephine should have a crown put upon her head, and be greater than a queen. This prediction, naturally treasured by herself, is known to have been currently reported and believed in 1838. 60 Our Sovereign, Queen Victoria, presiding at the Council, upon Her Majesty's accession to the Throne, on the 20th of June, 1837. The Queen is represented seated at the head of the Council table, and holds in her hand the most gracious declaration then addressed by Her Majesty to the Lords and others of the Council then assembled, of whom the following portraits, in the order in which they are placed on the canvas, are introduced.

- Behind Her Majesty's chair are the Duke of Argyll, the Earl of Albemarle, the Right Hon. George Byng and C. C. Greville, Esq.
- In front of the royal chair, and beginning at the left hand of the Queen, are the Marquess of Lansdown, Lord President of the Council, the Marquess of Anglesea, the Lord Chancellor, Lord Howick, Lord John Russell, the Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lord Melbourne, Lord Palmerston, the Right Hon. the Speaker of the House of Commons, Earl Grey, the Earl of Carlisle, Lord Denman, the Right Hon. Thomas Erskine, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Morpeth, Lord Aberdeen, Lord Lyndhurst, His Majesty the King of Hanover, the Duke of Wellington, the Earl of Jersey, the Right Hon. J. W. Croker, the Right Hon. Sir Robert Peel, Bart., H.R.H.

1839. 65 Sir David Baird discovering the body of Sultaun Tippoo Saib, after having captured Seringapatam, on the 4th of May, 1799. The division of the besieging army destined for the assault, which Major-General Baird had volunteered to command, having become masters of this important fortress, the fall of which involved the ultimate settlement of the British power in India, still General Baird considered the victory incomplete until the personal fate of Tippoo could be ascertained.
- "About dusk General Baird, in consequence of information he had received at the Palace, came with lights to the gate, accompanied by the late Killadar of the Fort, and others, to search for the body of the Sultaun; and after much labour it was found, and brought from under a heap of slain to the inside of the gate. The countenance was in no way distorted; but had an expression of stern composure. His turban, jacket, and sword-belt were gone; but the body was recognized by some of his people who were there to be the Sultaun."
- Theodore Hook.*
- General Baird, who is standing in the gateway under which Tippoo received his death wound, is supposed to be giving orders that the body should be carried to the Palace; and below his feet, in the parapet wall, is a grating here introduced as

- giving light to the dungeon in which he had been for nearly four years immured by Hyder Ally and his son, the same Tippoo Sultaun, who, by a remarkable dispensation of Providence, he now finds prostrate at his feet, bereft of his crown, his kingdom and his life.

"The subject of the picture, a vow paid on recovery from severe illness, is a religious observance still adhered to in the neighbourhood of Rome. A young girl convalescent, accompanied by her family and friends, is represented arriving at the end of her pilgrimage at the shrine of the "Madonna della Salute," her gay costume thrown aside, and a black dress with red and blue ribbons adopted in its stead, which, on such occasions, it is customary to wear for one year as a sign of the vow, as a work of devotion. She approaches the sacred shrine barefoot as well as her companions. Her mother is carrying her now useless crutches, and her friends bring offerings of silver hearts (on which the letters P.G.R. express 'Per grazia ricevuta'), wreaths and bundles of flowers, painted candles, etc., etc., all of which are consigned to the shrine of the Madonna as tokens of gratitude."

a few days, she went thence to London through crowds of people, who strove with each other in giving her the strongest testimony of their affection. On her entrance in the Tower she could not forbear reflecting on the great difference between her present fortune and that which a few years before had attended her, when she was conducted to that place as a prisoner, and lay there exposed to all the bigoted malignity of her enemies.
She fell on her knees, and expressed her thanks to Heaven for the deliverance

"When the royal carriage, in which were seated Marie de Medicis and her son-in-law, Charles I, entered the great quadrangle of the Palace of James's, Queen Henrietta, at the flourish of drums and trumpets, left her chamber and descended the great staircase to meet her august mother. She was accompanied by her children, the little Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, and the two princesses, Mary and the infant Elizabeth. The Queen being then near her time, and in critical health, a chair was placed for Her Majesty at the foot of the stairs; but when she perceived her royal parent, such was her anxiety to show her duty and tenderness, that she arose, and hurrying to her carriage, endeavoured with her trembling hands to open the door, which she was too weak to accomplish. The moment her mother alighted, she fell on her knees before her to receive her blessing, and the royal children knelt around them. Every one who saw it was affected to tears at this meeting."—Miss Strickland.

"Anne Boleyn, when maid of honour to Catherine of Aragon, had secretly plighted her troth to Lord Percy, son to the Duke of Northumberland. The maids of honour mess'd together, and on these occasions Percy was wont to resort to pay his attentions to the fair Boleyn. The discovery of this circumstance by the King gave rise to such an outbreak of jealousy on his part as to lead to the various steps which ended in the elevation of Anne, and the commencement of the Reformation in England."

1867. 494 Oliver Cromwell the night before his death. "Afterwards, towards morning, he used divers holy expressions implying much inward consolation and peace; among the rest, he spoke some exceeding self-debasing words, annihilating and judging himself. And truly it was observed that a public spirit to God's cause did breathe in him, as in his life-time, so now to his very last."—Carlyle.

The hall had been emptied by the rush that filled the court, and the body of the murdered duke, lifted from the ground upon the table, lay there alone. . . . But the solitude could have lasted only an instant, when out upon the gallery landing stood two distracted women, whose appalling shrieks rent the air. The wife of the duke's brother was staying with them, and at the first shock and confusion had rushed out of her own room into that of the duchess, and fallen on the floor. The duchess, who at the time was pregnant, was still in bed; but as her women lifted Lady Anglesea, she started up, and, in her night gear as she was, ran out into the gallery, followed by her sister."—John Forster.
- 143 The bride.
1872. 497 The arrest of Anne Boleyn. "During dinner her ladies, who knew what was coming, durst hardly speak to her. Scarcely had the 'surnap' been removed when the Duke of Norfolk, and one or two Lords of the Council, entered her presence, accompanied by Sir William Kingston, the Constable of the Tower. At the sight of the latter the Queen started up in terror."
1873. 913 The ladye's Knight. It was customary when a Knight was about to contend on behalf of the ladies of his country, for his fair constituents to present him with a favour to be worn on the occasion.
- "Truth it is that the Wednesday next before the solemn and devout resurrection of our blessed Saviour, I drew me near to the Queen of England and France (Elizabeth Woodville), to whom I am right humble servant, subject and brother. And as I spoke to her Highness, on my bended knee, I know not how it was, but the ladies of her court environed me about, and I took heed that they had given me a collar, to which was attached a flower of Souvenance, enamelled, and in manner of emprise, etc."—"Letter from Sir Anthony Woodville."

1875. 113 "At last, mother!"
- 389 Queen Elizabeth and Essex. "Hurrying back from Ireland, Essex rode at once to the palace of Nonsuch, where the queen then was. Arriving early in the morning, he made his way, in spite of all protestations, into the royal bed-chamber. Throwing himself down before Elizabeth, he covered her hand with kisses, and besought her not to listen to the accusations of his enemies. The old queen, who was newly risen, without her wig, and in the hands of her tirewoman, received him very graciously, but later in the same day she ordered him into arrest, on the charge of high treason."

"On Palm Sunday, March 18th, 1554, Elizabeth (Princess) was, by order of her sister, Queen Mary, and under the charge of the Lords Winchester and Sussex, conveyed prisoner to the Tower. The party landed at the Traitor's Gate. ". . . When Elizabeth had ascended the steps she stood for a moment as it were transfixed, and then seating herself on the wet stones, refused to move.
". . . Sir John Bridges, Lieutenant of the Tower, urged her to come in, saying that she would get wet, and that the place was unwholesome. 'Better here,' she replied, 'than a worse place, for God knoweth, not I, whither you mean to bring me.'" 1881. 566 The origin of the English woollen trade. Queen Philippa, wife of Edward III, determined on introducing the manufacture of woollen goods into this country; and sending for her countryman, one 'John Kempe of Flanders,' commenced operations in the first instance at Norwich. Shortly after the Queen herself visited Norwich to inspect the progress of the work. . . . The result of her enterprise was the great enrichment not only of Norwich, but also of the whole Kingdom, and thus was originated the woollen trade of England.

1883. 820 The Courtship of William II of Orange. "William, when a lad, came over to England to propose for the hand of the princess royal, daughter of Charles I and Henrietta Maria. The little Princess was ill in bed at the time, but William, being determined to see her, persuaded her brother to admit him and his tutor to her presence. When his brother-in-law, Colonel Gunter, was talking very feelingly concerning Cromwell and his party, he went and whispered his brother-in-law in the ear, and asked whether I was not some rascally roundhead rogue's son, for I looked very suspiciously."—Charles II's narrative.

1886. 661 The fall of Queen Elizabeth Woodville on the 3rd of May, 1483. Some few weeks after the death of Edward IV. Elizabeth received the astounding news that her eldest son had been seized and made prisoner by his uncle, Richard of Gloucester. Taking the rest of her family with her, she fled that same night into Sanctuary at Westminster.

Early the next morning the Chancellor called to deliver up the Great Seal: he found the Queen kneeling on the floor, her fair hair streaming to the ground, and her boxes, hangings, and household stuff, etc., scattered about in confusion.

1887. 533 Whittington's banquet. On the return from France of the hero of Agincourt and his bride, Sir Richard invited them to a banquet at his house. Everything connected with the entertainment was of the most sumptuous character; the fires even were fed with scented woods and spices. The Queen commenting upon this, Whittington replied that "he proposed to make the fuel still more costly," and presently taking a bundle of the King's own bonds, some for moneys lent him by the City Companies, and which Whittington had redeemed, and the remainder for loans from himself to the King, he threw them on the fire and destroyed them. The amount of these bonds is stated to have been £60,000, which has been estimated as equal to over a million present value.

1864. 477 La reine malheureuse. "Henrietta Maria, Queen of Charles I, after going to Holland to obtain supplies to assist the King in carrying on the war he was then waging with the Parliament returned to England and landed in Burlington Bay, Feb. 20, 1642-3. Two days after her return, five ships of war, commanded by the Parliamentary Admiral Batten, entered the bay in the night and commenced an active cannonade. One of their ships, says the Queen in a letter to the King, did me the favour of flanking on the house where I slept, and before I was out of bed the balls whistled so loud about me, that my company pressed me earnestly to go out of the house. . . . So, clothed as well in haste as I could be, I went on foot to some little distance from the town of Burlington, and got in the shelter of a ditch, whither, before I could get, the cannon bullets fell thick about us, and a servant was killed within seventy paces of me. . . . One dangerous ball grazed the edge of the ditch and covered us with earth and stones."

"Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, being the great favourite of the Queen Elizabeth, it was thought she would have made him her husband; to this end, to free himself from all obstacles, he had his wife, Amy Robsart, conveyed to the solitary house of Cumnor Hall, in Berkshire, inhabited by Anthony Forster, his servant. This same Forster, in compliance with what he well knew to be the Earl's wishes, came with others in the dead of night to the lady's bedchamber, and stifled her in bed, and flung her down stairs, thereby believing the world would have thought it a mischance, and so blinded their villainy; and the morning after with the purpose that others should know of her end, did Forster, on pretence of carrying out some behest of the Countess, bring a servant to the spot where the poor lady's body lay at the foot of the stairs."—Aubrey.

"Then said the Hermit, Knowest thou a certain river, stony, wide, and deep? help people to cross it, and it may be thy good work may prove acceptable to Jesus Christ, whom thou desirest to serve. To which Christopher replied joyfully, This can I do! it is a service which pleaseth me well: And so it happened, after many days spent in this toil, that one night, as he rested himself in his hut, he heard the plaintive voice of a child saying, 'Come forth, Christopher, and carry me over.' . . . And Christopher placed the child on his strong shoulders, took his staff, and entered the stream. The waters rose higher and higher, and the heavier the infant became, Christopher began to fear; nevertheless, taking courage, and staying his tottering steps with his palm staff, he reached the opposite bank; there putting the child down gently, said, 'Who art thou? had I carried the whole world the burden had not been heavier.' The child replied, 'Wonder not Christopher, for thou hast even carried the maker of the world: Me wouldest thou serve in thy works of charity, and behold I have accepted thy service; in testimony thereof plant thy staff in the ground and it shall put forth leaves and fruit, and henceforth thou shall be called Christopher, for thou hast borne Christ.'"—Mrs. Jameson.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITORS

CORRECTIONS AND ADDITIONS

- ADAMS, Harry W.
 1900. 538 Purchased for the Chantrey Bequest for £175.
- AILESBOURY, Susanna, Countess of.
 1770. 232 (Caroline, Countess of Ailesbury—nothing can be better or more masterly, nor can too much be said of Lady Ailesbury's needlework. This is copied from Oudry.—Walpole.)
 The above note shows that the artist must have been Caroline, Dowager Countess of Ailesbury, widow of the 3rd Earl of the first creation. Susanna was in 1770 the Hon. Mrs. Bruce.
- AITCHISON, George, R.A. See also Roumieu and Aitchison, vol. vi, page 377.

BARRETT, George, R.A.
1775. 401 A small landscape.

BARRY, James, R.A.
1772. — (A young Irishman sent by Mr. Edmund Burke to study at Rome, Mr. H. W. happened to laugh at this picture at the Exhibition, when Barry, whom he did not know, was present. Barry resented this so much that not long after, in a treatise he wrote on painting, he satirized Mr. W. as an admirer of the Flemish painters, yet Mr. W. has been censured by others for undervaluing them too much in his preface to the Odes Walpoliana. Barry was of a quarrelsome temper, broke with his patron, Mr. Burke, and with the Royal Academy, and after some time ceased exhibiting; it is true however that he had genius and warning.—Walpole.)

BASSETT-SMITH, William. See Smith, vol. vii, page 194.

BATES, Harry, A.R.A.
1890. 217 Purchased for the Chantrey Bequest for £1,000.

BEETHAM, Miss Jane . . . Painter.
(Daughter of Edward Beet-ham of Little Strickland, Westmoreland, and 27, Fleet Street, London, and grand-daughter of William Betham of Little Strickland. She was the only lady pupil of John Opie, R.A., and married John Read of Stamford Street, London, in 1798. She was the mother of Miss Cordelia Angelica Read, who left a large legacy and her mother's pictures to the Consumption Hospital at Brompton.)

In vol. i, page 165, only the exhibits from 1794 to 1797 were by her. The remainder were by her first cousin, Miss Mary Matilda Betham. See also MRS. READ, vol. vi, page 244; for her exhibits after her marriage.

BEETHAM, Miss M.

(Should be MISS MARY BETHAM in vol. i, page 165. She was the younger sister of Miss Mary Matilda Betham.)

BEETHAM, William.

He was a son of Mathew Beetham of Towcett, Westmoreland, a younger branch of the Bethams of Little Strickland.

BELCHER, John, A.R.A.

(The A.R.A. was omitted in error on page 169 of vol. i.)

BELL, Miss Ada (afterwards Mrs. Francis Julian Whalley).

BELL, Hesketh Davis. See H. Drummond, vol. ii, page 371.

BETHAM, Miss Mary Matilda.

Miniature Painter.

(Daughter of the Rev. William Betham, antiquary and author, and granddaughter of William Betham of Little Strickland, Westmoreland. She was born in 1776, and died unmarried in 1852. There is a long and interesting account of her in D.N.B., vol. iv.)

In vol. i, page 165, all the exhibits placed under the name of Miss Jane Beetham in error from 1804 to 1816, are by her.

It is as well to note that the elder branch of William Betham's family spelt the name as Beetham, and the younger retained the spelling of Betham. This explains the note in vol. i, page 165.

The above particulars of the Beetham and Betham families were given to the compiler by Mr. Frederick Beetham of Clifton End, Manningham, Bradford.

BEURDEN, Alphonse van.

See VAN BEURDEN, vol. viii, page 68, for the remainder of his exhibits.

BLOMFIELD, Sir Arthur W., A.R.A.

1895. 1429 Organ case in south transept, St. Saviour's Church, Southwark. (St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent, inserted in error.)

BOUGUEREAU, William Adolphe.

This artist's name is spelt Bougereau in error in vol. i, pages 247, 248.

BOYDELL, Josiah.

From a set of Royal Academy catalogues that once belonged to Miss Boydell, lent to me by Mr. Francis Harvey, of St. James's Street, one is able to arrive at some idea when she was married from the signatures on some of them. She was Mary Boydell up to 1786, and signs herself as Mary Nicol in 1793.

BRAMLEY, Frank, A.R.A.

1888. 351 Purchased for the Chantrey Bequest for £450.

BRETT, John, A.R.A.

1880. 387 Purchased for the Chantrey Bequest for £600.

BROWNE, John, A.R.A.

1771. — (John Browne, the first associate Engraver, elected Decr. 2, 1770.)

"There shall be a new order or rank of members, to be called associates of the Royal Academy; they shall be elected from amongst the Exhibitors, and be entitled to every advantage enjoyed by the Royal Academicians, excepting that of having a voice in the deliberations, or any share in the Government of the Academy, neither shall they have admittance to the Library but on public days, or the liberty of introducing strangers to the lectures. They shall be ballotted for in the same manner as Academicians are, and be elected by the majority of the members balloting. The number of these associates shall not exceed 20.

"Every associate shall be obliged to exhibit one performance in every exhibition; omitting to do so (without any sufficient cause) he shall forfeit the sum of £2 10s., to be paid into the Treasury of the Academy.

"That the vacant seats of Academicians shall be filled from Associates only."

Six associate engravers were empowered to be added in the same manner, but the diploma of these as well as the other associates, to be signed by the President and Secretary.

The full Academic diploma only requiring the Royal signature.

16 associates and 5 asso-

BUTLER, Elizabeth Lady.
1879. 582 "One man alone reached Jellalabad. Literally, one man—Dr. Brydon—came to Jellalabad out of a moving host which had numbered in all some sixteen thousand when it set out on its march. The curious eye will search through history or fiction in vain for any picture more thrilling with the suggestion of an awful catastrophe than that of this solitary survivor, faint and reeling on his jaded horse, as he appeared under the walls of Jellalabad, to bear the tidings of our Thermopylae of pain and shame." —Justin McCarthy.

very admirable portrait of Lady Oxford in the best style of the artist; there is a happy union of dignity and elegance in the figure, and a sweet maternal charm in the countenance, etc. The child also is exquisitely" The remainder is illegible in my notes.)

(Lady Oxford was Miss Scott, and married Edward, fifth Earl of Oxford, March 3, 1794. Her elder daughter was born March 9, 1796, so the child mentioned by the "True Briton" was a year old.)
